Streaming Media Magazine Selects Osprey® by Variosystems as One of the Top 100 Companies that Matter Most in Online Video

Southlake, Texas, October 6, 2014 –Osprey by Variosystems is pleased to announce our selection as one of Streaming Media’s top 100 companies for 2014.

Eric Schumacher-Rasmussen of Streaming Media Magazine commented, "This year's Streaming Media 100 is a diverse bunch, as diverse as the industry it represents. The one thing every company on the list has in common is that they're committed to innovation and moving the industry forward. These are the companies that are here for the long haul, and our congratulations go out to all the members of this elite list."

According to Roger Bieri, General Manager, "Osprey by Variosystems is proud to accept this recognition and to live up to the challenge it represents. We will continue the Osprey video tradition of innovation by developing and delivering professional-quality capture cards that are seamlessly compatible with the industry’s leading production, encoding, streaming applications. In fact, we have 5 new products launching in early 2015." Read Roger’s View From the Top editorial.

Osprey video capture cards are used in mission-critical applications throughout the world and are known for legendary quality and performance. Used in a wide variety of applications, from aerospace to surveillance, Internet TV to webcasting, Osprey cards drive the delivery of video to viewers all around the globe.
